Internet Protocol Voice Service (Commercial Customer) (“Service”)

The Service is a voice over Internet Protocol (“VoIP”) service provided by HKT to commercial fixed line customers via a designated smartphone application (“App”) working on any eligible mobile devices/tablet computers through data usage or Wi-Fi connection (as the case may be). The Service may allow customers in Hong Kong or abroad to communicate with other telephone users locally or overseas through Internet¹ with the associated business fixed number designated as the Calling Line Identification (CLI) of the calls originating from the Service². The Service may be used as an extension of the associated business fixed number to receive incoming calls simultaneously. The Service also supports call-back for customers to make calls to Hong Kong or overseas numbers with the call setup information conveyed through SMS messages or data usage provided by the other telecommunications service providers (as the case may be). Certain value-added services (“VAS”) features (such as Call Waiting, Caller Number Display and Call Forwarding) may be made available under the designated App for the Service³.

The App may be downloaded by the user(s) or installed by HKT to the relevant device(s), but the customer must first authorize and sign up to the relevant service contract before the App can be activated for use. The Service may make use of telecommunications services provided by other third parties, such as roaming data usage, international SMS and local mobile usage, the customer shall be responsible for all the relevant charges so incurred and levied by the other service providers operating mobile services to the customer. HKT’s IDD Services may be used under the Service where the customer has made a separate subscription accordingly, and HKT will charge the customer IDD 0060 usage charges in accordance with the prevailing IDD tariff.

The Service includes but not limited to “Smart Biz Line – Biz Traveler” and “Smart Biz Line – Biz On-the-go”.
